Music Opens the Door to North Korea

The U.S. and North Korean flags shared the same stage as the New York Philharmonic played a historic concert in Pyongyang on Tuesday, February 26, 2008. The orchestra had the auspicious honor of being the largest U.S. cultural group to ever perform in North Korea. In an effort to ease tension between the two countries, the Philharmonic, encouraged by the US government, accepted the invitation from North Korea to perform. Lorin Maazel, conductor for the N.Y. Philharmonic said that even though a concert is a very small step, it will hopefully spark other cultural & social exchanges.
